10:00 - 11:30	Panel 1 - Opportunities and challenges of the green transition Warming in the Mediterranean basin is higher than in the rest of the world's regions. However, the Mediterranean has a great potential to make progress in terms of sustainability while enhancing trade flows. Joint climate action like the EU Green Deal can contribute to a transformational change for more sustainable and inclusive economic models in the Mediterranean region. The formulation of concerted trade, investment and employment policies are crucial towards the green transition. The panel will focus on how the green transition is shaping opportunities for economic growth, investment and development in the Mediterranean? What is needed for countries and companies to take advantage of the new opportunities arising from green transition strategies, eg. the EU Green Deal? Moderator: Natasha Walker

12:00 - 13:30	Panel 2 - Promoting opportunities for green investment and green jobs Investments, while contributing to increased competitiveness, need to drive sustainable growth and development. To this end, policy frameworks are required to shape green investment flows by fostering transparency, innovation, and green skills for better jobs, among other important conditions. Private investment plays also a key role in supporting the just transition, in particular in the energy sector. In addition, new and modern investment agreement frameworks comprise a set of conditions facilitating sustainable investments, how can these new initiatives be leveraged to promote green investments in the Mediterranean?. The speakers will engage in a joint reflection on what should governments consider when creating policies for the promotion and facilitation of sustainable investments in the Mediterranean countries? How can the new WTO Investment Facilitation for Development Agreement and other frameworks assist in attracting investments for sustainable development in the region? How can bilateral agreements (Strategic Partnership MoUs, SIFAs or other agreements contribute to sustainable trade and investment facilitation? What is the role of private investors? How can investments via financial institutions contribute? Moderator: Natasha Walker
